

Steiner | Visa Info & Medical

New candidates must apply for U.S. C1-D visa.

Medical Requirements | Information

Information you should know before you begin:

All job offers and/or offers of employment are contingent upon meeting certain physical requirements and obtaining a valid Pre Employment Medical Examination Certificate known as a "PEME". PEME's and the issuance of a seafarer's health certificate must be performed by an approved seamen's doctor.

Failure to pass the PEME examination will automatically terminate your employment agreement.

During your medical examination, you will be asked whether you are receiving or have received in the past medical care for any injury, illness or medical condition. You will be required to disclose to the doctor performing your physical any prescription or non-prescription medication you are currently taking.

In addition, you will be required to disclose to Steiner in writing any condition, disability, or circumstance, which may prevent you from working full time onboard a vessel in navigation. Failure to make this disclosure may result in forfeiture of medical benefits and be grounds for termination of employment.

In addition to a hearing and eyesight test, the following is an abbreviated list of diseases and conditions that may or can result in failing the required medical examination.
